Extract A

Pancong Maleleh

Pancong is a traditional Indonesian sweet snack. The main ingredients are rice flour, coconut milk, eggs and sugar. Pancong is often sold in Indonesian markets.

Entrepreneur, Ovan Naufal, opened Pancong Maleleh in September 2023. He combined the popularity of pancong with his idea to open a business in the small town of Kualuh Hulu, on the Indonesian island of Sumatra. 5

Ovan was able to negotiate rent for premises at a low cost. These premises are close to people walking to the nearby train station. A number of friends helped him prepare for the opening but Ovan currently has no employees.

Pancong Maleleh makes a standard pancong, then adds a popular filling, such as chocolate, pineapple or blueberry. There are currently nine different varieties available and each pancong is sold at a price of Rp 10 000 ($0.64). 10

Some customers have asked Ovan if durian (a tropical fruit) can be introduced as a new filling. Durian is considered to be a very healthy fruit but the variable costs would be higher than for other fillings sold by Pancong Maleleh. 15

Extract C

Wilko Limited (Wilko)

Wilko was a UK-based, high-street retail chain, selling discounted household and garden products. It started trading in 1930 and officially closed its high-street retail shops in October 2023. The business had changed its name several times but has been a private limited company (Ltd) since 1941.

5

Although Wilko's annual revenue was over £1bn in 2021/22, market conditions, rising costs of living and increases in the rate of interest were listed amongst the causes of its failure. However, competitors selling similar discounted products did not experience the same problems and continued to trade.

In the final year end accounts available at the time of its closure, Wilko showed a decrease in gross profit from £525.7m in 2021 to £501.5m in 2022.

10

Wilko owed over £147m in trade credit prior to its closure in October 2023.

Extract D

The Range

The Range operates as a high-street and an online retailer, selling other businesses' goods through its shops and its own website. It has hundreds of items available and is constantly adding to its product range.

Recently, the management of The Range has focused attention on increasing the products available for sale on its website. With the option of next-day delivery, it appeals to many customers, as well as being able to compete more effectively with bigger, well-known, online businesses, such as Amazon.

5

Following the closure of all Wilko shops with a loss of 12,500 jobs, The Range was able to buy branded Wilko products to sell in its shops and on its website. In addition, it was able to offer jobs to 36 IT technicians, previously employed by Wilko, to help with the development of its online business. This enabled a small part of the Wilko name to continue, as well as increasing market share for The Range, due to the attraction of offering a well-known brand.
